The History of Modern Russian and Ukrainian Art, Part 2

This second compilation of sources for the history of modern Russian and Ukrainian art is a treasure trove of rare publications that considerably widens and deepens the range of part 1. In addition to painting and sculpture, the publications cover graphics and book illustration, theatre and theatre decor, porcelain, costume and clothing design, architecture, physical culture, and mass performance. They also deal with art education, theory, museum exhibitions and acquisitions, and international cultural relations. The geographic scope of the publications in this group has similarly been expanded. The publications come from Vladivostok, Tver, Berlin, Kazan, Chita, and Kharkiv, as well as the capital cities.

Individual arts

The collection includes reference works, memoirs, and books about the life and art of many individual artists: Altman, Boichuk, Chagall, Ermilov, Golovin, Narbut, Ostroumova-Lebedeva, Palmov and others. Many different groups and trends that bear upon modernism are also represented here, such as the visual arts and theatre in the Proletarian Culture movement (Proletkult), crafts, and revolutionary art from the Anarchist viewpoint. The serials Iskusstvo i khudozhestvennaia promyshlennost' (1898-1902), and Iskusstvo v proizvodstve (1921), and the conference proceedings, Pervaia Vserossiiskaia konferentsiia po khudozhestvennoi promyshlennosti (1920), are some of the sources for the debates around industry and the arts.

Art history

Considerable attention has been given to art theory as it developed from the turn of the century through the 1920s, including the development of sociological approaches to art. The publications of such major art institutions as the Visual Arts Section of Narkompros (the Commissariat of Enlightenment), the State Institute of Art History, and the State Institute of Artistic Sciences, as well as the work of scholars and critics associated with them, are also notable.

Rare periodicals

Perhaps the most significant strength of this collection is a group of very rare periodicals documenting the course of Ukrainian art and culture during the 1920s. It includes, for example, Shliakhy mystetstva (1921-), Nove mystetstvo (1925-1928), Zhittia i revoliutsiia (1925-1934), and Nova heneratsiia (1927-1930).
